All the "controls" (play, stop, back, forward, previous, next) work, however they only work when the mouse cursor is over the controls. I'm currently not using any libraries such as jQuery, so it's pretty simple and doesn't require any of the effort that would be involved with these libraries. If I want to progress further in this area of development, however, I know that I'm going to need a library. Can anyone offer any advice as to what libraries I could use to enable full-screen HTML5 audio playback and in which language, assuming the answers are in the same language? Thanks. A: I was able to solve this problem by taking a combination of three libraries: HTML5 Media Audio.js HTML5 Boilerplate All 3 are open-source. HTML5 Media: Audio.js: HTML5 Boilerplate: I used HTML5 Media in combination with the AudioJS library to solve this problem. Cameron is playing the same game as before by trying to sell a disaster that will result in the NHS to future generations. NHS campaigners are doing everything they can to raise awareness and demonstrate the costs of privatisation.
